As a second-year software engineering student at Vilnius Gediminas Technical University, I am deeply passionate about coding and software development. I possess a strong aptitude for programming, which has enabled me to excel in my coursework. In my free time, I continually work to improve my programming skills and explore new programming languages. Alongside my academic pursuits, I am also an active member of my faculty's student representation, where I have gained valuable experience in marketing and event planning, including organizing the successful "Night to Unite" event that drew in 3,000 attendees. I am known for my excellent communication and organizational skills, which I have honed through collaborating with companies to secure sponsorships for our events.
